In the Renaissance City CORRUPTION REARS ITS UGLY HEAD.

By - Rebecca Bozeman

Bribery, extortion, mail fraud, intimidation of a witness... are these characteristics synonymous with a Renaissance? Apparently, when it comes to the "Birth of the Renaissance City" they are. Recently, the city of Providence has undergone a phase of urban renewal. Externally, the city appears to be an urban mecca offering residents and tourists state of the art shopping facilities, food and drink from all over the world, a flourishing art community, and access to the Performing Arts, just to name a few. Internally, Providence appears to be offering residents and citizens the opportunity to see first hand how corruption can breed distrust in the institution formerly known as government.

For those of us who are not from Rhode Island and are unfamiliar with the corruption that has permeated this city's government for over a decade, here are some key events that have led to the current dismal state of affairs. In the early 80's, Vincent A. Cianci Jr. became the mayor of Providence, Rhode Island. Acting as U.S. Attorney, Linc Almond, unsuccessfully tried to prosecute Cianci on corruption charges. These charges prompted a government investigation that has lasted over a decade. Although Almond was unable to convict Cianci, he convicted several members of Cianci's staff. Officials including Cianci's former chief of staff and his former highway chief were both sent to prison for extortion.

In 1984, Cianci was forced out of office as a convicted felon, receiving a 5 year suspended sentence for assaulting his ex-wife's lover. It may have distorted the public's perception at the time, however, as time passed the people of Providence once again rallied behind their leader, and Cianci emerged unscathed and was re-elected in 1990.

Aside from the Federal Government breathing down Cianci's neck, it was business as usual at City Hall.

Cianci and his administration ushered in the 90's relatively quietly, without any major allegations of corruption, the City Hall appeared to be back on track. Unfortunately, this was not the case. For seven years the Federal Prosecutors armed with an undercover informant closely investigated City Hall, patiently gathering enough evidence to charge Cianci and his administration. The residents of Providence knew it was only a matter of time before Mayor Cianci would have to face the music. When that fateful day arrived, FBI agents raided City Hall, seizing documents, discs, folders, and other potentially realtive information. The agent's diligent investigations finally were producing fruits of labor; the question whether that fruit was taken from the forbidden tree still remains a mystery.

Upon gathering this information agents and prosecutors were finally able to access the pertinent information they needed to get the ball rolling. Most notably, former deputy tax assessor, Rosemary Glancy was convicted of corruption charges and sent to prison. This created quite a controversy. Following sentencing Glancy became terminally ill and was provided a rare, yet, justly release from the Federal Bureau of Prisons.

It would be uncharacteristic if the Cianci Administration did not start the decade off with a public scandal. This week Mayor Vincent A. Cianci and his closest staff were indicted and charged with public corruption. The Mayor's chief of staff, Artin H. Coloian, is at the forefront of these accusations. Cianci is accused of conspiring to extort $250,000 in campaign contributions from tow truck operators, sharing in bribes for a $1.3 million School Department lease, attempting to extort $10,000 for a city real-estate deal, extorting a $5,000 bribe for a huge property tax break, and extorting a free lifetime membership to the exclusive University Club by holding up the club's building permits.

China and U.S. Face-off - Will There be an End?

By - Christopher S. Bice

For two weeks, the United States and China have been face to face, each country waiting for the other to give in, since a Chinese fighter plane and a U.S. Navy surveillance plane collided. However, neither is willing to claim responsibility and Chinese officials are still holding 24 Americans. Will there ever be an end?

This is the exact question many U.S. officials have been pondering. In the eyes of America, an apology in the global political arena can have several adverse consequences. For one, an apology would be admitting guilt in the incident, something the U.S. is not willing to admit, since they claim that the U.S. plane was flying in international airspace. The U.S. contends that flying in international airspace shows no intent of hostility. The Chinese argue differently.

A second reason is that U.S. officials believe an apology would weaken the stance of the White House and President George W. Bush. Bush was willing to issue an apology for the Japanese fishing boat incident when a U.S. submarine collided with the boat, but not for this incident. Clinton, unlike Bush, made several apologies, including an apology for the Vietnam War and the accidental bombing of the Chinese Embassy in Belgrade in 1999.

Thirdly, several legal reasons have kept the United States from issuing an apology. If America did admit guilt, this could give China the "go ahead" to try the U.S. pilot, seek compensation, or force the U.S. to stop flying planes near China's shores. For all of these reasons, the U.S. is not willing to offer an apology.

The U.S. has issued a statement of regret for the lost Chinese pilot, not an apology. Chinese officials retaliated against the statement of regret, releasing a letter from Ruon Gupqin, wife of the downed pilot Wang Wei. She said, "You are trying to shirk your responsibility and defame my husband."

Vice President Dick Cheney stated on Sunday's "Meet the Press" that the U.S. plane was in international airspace and that he supports continuing these surveillance flights. Cheney said that both sides are engaging in "intense diplomatic activity."

Survey Names Ecstasy Drug of Choice

Courtesy of: (California State U.-Chico) By Danny Bernardini

If Lassen Hall resident Diana Fasanaro wants a hit of ecstasy, she said it would only take a few questions and a short walk.

"We can get it just like that," Fasanaro said. "No one deals it in our hall, but we can just go to Whitney (Hall). You don't even have to be low-key about it. You can just walk around and ask people who has it."

MDMA, the brain-damaging drug known as ecstasy, was originally used in dance parties known as raves but is gaining popularity and has found its way into mainstream use throughout the country. California State University-Chico is no exception.

According to a survey given by the Campus Alcohol and Drug Education Center, 16 percent of the sampled students have used designer drugs in the last year. The national average of designer drug use is 6 percent.

Shauna Quinn, director of CADEC, said her group started noticing a trend when students in drug and alcohol classes said ecstasy was the most commonly used drug on campus.

"In the past it's always been marijuana," Quinn said. "Previously we hadn't talked about ecstasy."

She said the center began educating students about the drug because few students know the risks involved with a pill that makes them feel so good.

"This group (of students) knows the harder stuff will ruin your life," she said. "They have seen their role models die. They don't believe they can die from a little pill called ecstasy."

In an attempt to alert the campus and the community of the dangers of the drug, CADEC and the Campus Wellness Center put on a seminar Tuesday night addressing the facts and myths surrounding ecstasy.

Students.....there are effects in taking Ecstasy

What you need to know about the popular drug

Todd Dye, Vacaville police detective and expert on ecstasy, said at the event that not enough people know the effects of taking the drug.

Because the drug gives off an overwhelming feeling of pleasure and intensifies sensations throughout the body, users don't think about the side effects.

"They wonder, how can something that makes you feel so good be bad for you?" Dye said. "In reality, one dose can cause brain damage that can last up to seven years."

When users ingest ecstasy, serotonin is released from the brain, which cannot be replaced.

Serotonin, a brain chemical, is released each time the drug is used, which Dye said leads to depression.

The National Institute on Drug Abuse also released studies that prove ecstasy has many side effects on the brain and body, and many are closely related to those of LSD and cocaine.

Side effects include depression, loss of memory, sleep problems and nausea.

Dye said another danger surrounding ecstasy is when the drug is mixed with other hard drugs such as LSD or cocaine. But even pure ecstasy can be deadly.

"Bad ecstasy will kill you," he said. "But good ecstasy can kill you too."

Because the drug is not legal to produce in any country, there are no regulations put on it, making it even more dangerous.

Shasta Hall resident Jackie Mansell said her friend took some impure ecstasy and suffered through the results.

"A friend of mine took some laced with acid (LSD) and tripped out pretty hard," Mansell said. "If you want to get really messed up, take whatever kind you want."

Because the drug is relatively new, few know the risks involved, said Sadie Wight, who has worked with CADEC for four semesters. She said it would take many years to realize the long-term effects.

"It may make you happy now," Wight said. "But 25 or 30 years later, you will be sad."

Quinn said it's the naïve users coupled with a need to get high that has students abusing drugs such as ecstasy.

"People have always looked for a way to get high and feel better than their current state of mind," she said. "Next year there could be a new drug."

Dye said the ease of taking ecstasy adds to the attractiveness.

"It's a pill. All you have to do is put it in your mouth and swallow," he said. "You don't have to put it in a bowl and smoke it or cut it up and sniff it." Deborah Genito, a counselor at the Wellness Center said until people are fully educated about the drug, it will be hard to curtail the use.

"We don't really know much about it and how to deal with it," Genito said. "We do see some students feeling effects, but we don't know enough."

Students It's Tax Time

What you need to know to get the most back

Courtesy of: U-Wire

Students who fear filing taxes may find their tasks a bit easier this year, as new services are available to help them with their preparations.

Such services offer many advantages including fast refunds, error proof calculations, step-by-step instructions prepared by professionals, and an easy introduction to the tax system.

And with the online revolution, Americans now have the option of filing on the Internet for free. Many sites even offer free tax filing for students with simple W-2 forms. These sites offer the students the benefits of the fast, simple "e-filing."

The IRS sponsors a Volunteer Income Tax Assistance program to aid the public in filling out tax forms. The program's volunteers prepare tax return information on computers and transmit them electronically to the IRS — free of charge. The nearest VITA site can be found by calling (800) 829-1040.

Some universities including the University of Texas and American University provide tax services to international students. Like the IRS program, trained volunteers assist students with their taxes. According to the IRS the simplest mistakes on tax forms can be the most costly yet are the most avoidable. The IRS suggests these helpful tips:

- Double check that the correct boxes and lines are filled in.
- Double check all figures on the form.
- Be sure to attach all W-2 and 1099 forms that show tax withholdings.
- If money is owed, make checks payable to the United States Treasury.
- Check only one filing status.

The IRS says the four most common errors on tax forms are:

- Incorrectly entered or missing Social Security numbers.

- Incorrect tax entered from the tables.
- Withholding and estimated tax payments entered on the wrong lines.
- Addition and subtraction errors.

The IRS offers these additional tips:

If you are filing a tax return on paper, you should use the simplest form for which you qualify. The simpler the form, the less chance for an error that may cost you money or delay processing of your return.

The simplest IRS form is the Form 1040EZ.

In order to use this form you must be:

- Single or married filing jointly
- Under age 65
- No dependents
- Interest income is below $400
- Income or combined incomes below $50,000 1040A
- Income or combined incomes below $50,000

The maximum deduction for student loan interest increases to $2,000 from $1,500. Students enrolled in undergraduate-level courses paid for by their employers can exclude up to $5,250 in qualified expenses (tuition, books, fees and certain supplies) from their incomes.

Choosing the correct tax form could mean more money in your pocket. Check your tax instructions carefully. The IRS offers additional instructions on its Web site at <http://www.irs.gov>.

The main taxpayer assistance number is 1-800-829-1040. To order free forms and publications, call 1-800-829-3676. Our TTY/TDD number for the hearing-impaired is 1-800-829-4059. According to an IRS spokeswoman, these lines receive heavy traffic at tax time, so long waits can be avoided by calling late at unusual hours.

American Cancer Society Seeks Volunteers for Road Recovery

Road to Recovery drivers wanted. Do you have a couple of hours a week to help cancer patients? The American Cancer Society needs people who are dependable, have their own car, a good driving record and are available anytime Monday through Friday between 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. For over 25 years, Road to Recovery volunteers have been fighting cancer and saving lives by providing cancer patients with rides to treatment appointments. Training will be provided. If you would like to become a Road to Recovery driver, please call Linda Kalinoski at 800-364-5520.

Mayor Cianci.... Still Our Buddy ??

Providence residents still approve because of the changes that have taken place

Attempting to convict Cianci, Federal Prosecutors will employ the notoriously complicated RICO statute. Enacted in 1970, The Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act was used to infiltrate Mafia activity. During the 1990's it was used to crackdown on the Latin King's in Rhode Island. The RICO statute holds leaders of criminal enterprises responsible for the misdeeds of subordinates. Therefore, all the prosecutors need is to tie Cianci into the enterprise, and prove that he committed at least two crimes for the group. Prosecutors must be able to provide substantial evidence for this statute to apply.

Since the early 1980's, approximately 21 people have been convicted on various corruption charges as a result of these government investigations. How any political figure could hold office as the longest-serving big-city Mayor and maintain such a high approval rate while surrounded by so much scandal is baffling.

The Mayor is said to have an approval rate of over 60%. The other 40% of us have pulled the wool from over our eyes and decided that this behavior was unacceptable. A favorite comment, taken from the Providence Journal Bulletin, made by the Mayor while discussing diversity among his camp, "Overall, I have made great strides in diversifying city government." The irony in this comment is overwhelming. Cianci definitely has had diversified staff. It is an absolute shame that city government in Providence has come to this. Mayor Cianci certainly deserves a pat on the back for his progressive steps in revitalizing the city of Providence. Cianci has accomplished a great deal of positive things while in office. Unfortunately, this time it is not looking as though he will see the decade through in office.

U.S. hoping for the release of the 24 military troops being Held in China

U.S. officials are hoping for the release of the detainees sometime this week. The 24 military personnel have been seen several times and are living in officer quarters and eating catered food. Yet, the talks are centered around three main points, according to U.S. officials: neither side will accept responsibility; whether the plane and crew would be released; and if a standing joint commission on maritime safety would investigate the collision.

The retaliation of the U.S. could have a strong bite and hurt China is they continuously refuse to release the 21 men and three females that China is currently detaining. Congress, becoming very short-tempered, is threatening the renewal of normal U.S. and China trade relations, as well as slowing the Chinese entrance into the World Trade Organization and blocking the hosting of the 2008 Olympics.

In 1968, the United States issued an apology to North Korea, to obtain its 82-crew members, who had been held for 11 months, of the U.S. surveillance ship the USS Pueblo. Once the crew was freed, the United States immediately repudiated the apology.

Beneficial Use of Dredge Spoils Will Expedite Solution

By - John Torgon, Narragansett Bay Keeper, Save The Bay

As we plan the future of marine infrastructure in Narragansett Bay, we should not be forced to choose between a healthy Bay and safe, accessible marine transportation. There is no doubt that responsible dredging is a necessary part of maintaining our waterways, and that it is overdue here. Managed properly, dredging can be achieved with minimal risks to the Bay. As the Providence River ship channel continues to shoal and marinas are choking with silt and mud, the need to resolve the sediment disposal dilemma has never been more urgent.

Save The Bay has been working hard to resolve these issues for private marinas and for the state of Rhode Island. We recognize the need for dredging, and for practical disposal options. After decades of research and advocacy on this issue we have also learned that, in order to be implemented, any solution must have strong support from stakeholders including the state and federal environmental agencies, commercial and industrial facilities, recreational resource users, and coastal communities. As many as five or more agencies must concur to certify the selection of a disposal site. When determined opposition is added to a scientific and regulatory dispute, projects may be delayed indefinitely.

Part of the problem is inadequate state policy. Rhode Island has historically relied on the federal government, in the form of the Army Corps of Engineers, to provide full funding, engineering, and execution of dredging projects. Bound by regulations that compel them to select only the "least-cost/environmentally-acceptable" disposal option, the Corps will always do the cheapest and marginally acceptable thing: in-water disposal as close to the dredging site as possible. These proposed dumpsites are always politically charged, as resource users and project proponents debate issues of environmental risk and threats to other uses like safe fishing and shellfishing. The debate leads to additionally delay of dredging projects, contributing to endless loop of studies and meetings but with no real progress toward a long-term sustainable solution.

The window of opportunity for the state to step forward with its own solution is open today. If we advance our own strategy that includes components of beneficial use, environmental restoration and improvements, and innovative pilot projects to accommodate priority dredging, we can define the course of future marine infrastructure development. However, if we wait for the Corps to solve our problems for us or to declare open dumping season in the Bay, we're bound to remain stuck in this mud for years to come.

A male student reported being assaulted by a group of six or seven male subjects as he was walking in the vicinity of Westminister St. and Clemence St. at 4:00 pm on Wednesday, March 21, 2001. One suspect blocked the student's path as another suspect struck the student in the head from behind. The suspects are described as African American and/or Hispanic teenagers wearing baggy clothing.

March 22, 2001

Three male residents of ACE Hall were arrested by Warwick Police and charged with possession of stolen goods.

March 25, 2001

A non-student female reported being sexually assaulted by a male student while she was visiting at ACE Hall. The alleged victim has declined to file a criminal complaint at this time.

March 26, 2001

Four female students were arrested by Warwick Police and charged with shoplifting from Macy's Department Store in the Warwick Mall.

March 30, 2001

Two male students reported being approached while they were in the Harborside Campus parking lot. The males told the students to give them their money. One male indicated that he had a handgun by pointing an object at the students through the pocket of his sweatshirt. The other male told his companion to shoot if the students refused to give them their money. Providence Police responded and took a report. The assailants are described as follows: Two black males appearing to be in their teens, both approximately 5'8" tall with slight builds. One male was wearing a black sweater. The other male was wearing a gray hooded sweatshirt and sweatpants.

Letter to the Editor.... Stuck in High School ??

I have only one question...Are we still in high school? By listening to the childish complaints and immature attitude problems displayed here these past couple of months, I almost find myself feeling as if I have taken a step backwards instead of forward in my life.

While waiting for class the other day I overheard a couple of classmates complaining about a professor that they thought to be "totally unfair" and "not at all like professor such and such." I couldn't help thinking to myself that they had probably been spoiled their entire lives and probably wouldn't make it in the real world if they wanted to. Here they are, faced with a teacher who is actually going to challenge their minds, and the only thing they can do is complain about not getting the grade they wanted when the work was turned in wasn't done the way it should have been in the first place. Who's to blame? Why, what a surprise!!! They have no one to blame but themselves. I found myself wondering just where it was they went to high school that they weren't prepared for the way college was going to be.

It's not just the complaining that I can't handle here. I've witnessed many different students who just haven't figured out that fighting isn't the answer to everything. Walking to and from class I can see it happen everyday. Someone accidentally bumps into someone else walking down the street and what do you know? It just happened to be that person's favorite something or other and he or she gets punched in the face. Come on. How old are we again? People make mistakes. Learn how to say you're sorry and walk away instead of making it into World War III.

I think that I could probably write a short book on the immaturities of college students but instead I'll leave it with this. If I have offended anyone...I'm not sorry. Grow up and don't get an attitude with everything you happen to not agree with. Life is going to be full of things you don't like.

Letter to the Editor.... Greek Expansion

The dream to establish a new fraternity that I shared with 22 other college males quickly turned into a reality. The journey began with many phone calls and e-mails to anyone that I felt would be able to help us achieve our goal of becoming a member of the Sigma Alpha Mu organization. Myself as well as the director of expansion for the Sigma Alpha Mu organization kept in contact with the director of Greek Life for Johnson & Wales University. The understanding that we achieved among all peoples involved was a possibility of the window of expansion closing on us. Aware of all consequences we continued to proceed with achieving our goal. January 30, 2001 the director of expansion of Sigma Alpha Mu contacted the director of Greek Life. What was said during that phone conversation was that Sigma Alpha Mu was proud to announce the acceptance of the 23-member interest group? The Greek director of the University was indifferent. The following day the director of expansion for Sigma Alpha Mu spoke with the University to gather information about the institution. He was surprised to hear that the University held a meeting that decided to close expansion for 5 years. This meant that Sigma Alpha Mu would not be welcomed as a new fraternity at Johnson & Wales University. Both the National and the 23-member interest group were disappointed with the University's sudden decision. We were disappointed because we fulfilled all of the University requirements for becoming an on-campus fraternity. We felt that it was unfair that after Sigma Alpha Mu accepted us, the University closed expansion the next day. Sigma Alpha Mu and Johnson & Wales University students proceeded without University acceptance. The colonization ceremony took place on February 10, 2001. We faced and conquered all challenges we met upon starting a fraternity. We now face the challenges of receiving recognition by Johnson & Wales University, the director of Greek Life at the University, IFC, and all Johnson & Wales University students. The Sigma Alpha Mu colony of Johnson & Wales University feels that we deserve the opportunity to prove ourselves.

Letter to the Editor..... Students Behavior On Campus

I am writing to you in regards to a very serious issue that I have NEVER seen talked about in The Campus Herald. That topic would be the drug and alcohol problems that this school faces everyday and nothing is done about it. It's quite sad that not a week goes by here at Johnson & Wales that a student does not get arrested for possession of Marijuana or another illegal substance. I find it ironic that we are afraid to talk about this topic but yet it is posted in the paper and in every dorm that our students are getting arrested, which in my opinion is ridiculous! Are we proud of our students' drug use? Is it proper that we put it on display yet never actually tried to stop it? I mean some of our students here actually have the audacity to walk down the street in plain view of anybody smoking a joint or dealing on the corner! I have seen it almost every week for the two years that I have attended J & W.

The other thing is the blatant underage drinking. I find it so funny how 19 and 20 year old students can just walk into a bar, get plastered, and just walk right back into the dorms. I mean, come on, like you cannot tell these people are drunk!?!?! It's almost as bad as seeing the kid in class with the bright red, post-weed smoking eyes and not say a word. Now of course I understand that this isn't an issue that many people would want to deal with, I mean come on after all a large amount of kids come to college to "experiment and have fun" right? WRONG, if you are going to pay 20,000 dollars a year to smoke pot and get drunk, do the rest of us a favor and save your money and do it at home, it is an insult to this institution.

Also, I think it's about time that this newspaper staff stopped being afraid to write about REAL issues and not about Survivor or MTV for once!

Lena Paine
Book Review

Lena's Library Featuring: The Gift By: Danielle Steel

Maribeth Robertson is a high school sophomore in a small town. She is very smart and knows what she wants in the future. College is her goal, though her father does not understand why a girl needs an education when she would be home cooking and cleaning.

It is at this school dance that her life changes, for the better in many ways. Paul Browne is a senior with a girlfriend and the hero of the school, but tonight he was alone and sad. After leaving her date, Maribeth sits down on a bench and Paul sits beside her. For a moment she is unsure he is even talking to her. After a few words are exchanged, he asks if she wants to get a bite to eat at the local hangout. Overwhelmed by emotions, Maribeth accepts. They spend time with his friends laughing and smiling. On the drive home Maribeth is so happy with the words Paul says and the way she is feeling that things get a little out of hand. The only thing Maribeth is concerned about is getting pregnant. Paul reassured her that she will not get pregnant the first time.

Morning sickness starts and Maribeth realizes it was all a lie. Paul is back with his girlfriend and Maribeth is pregnant. Once the family discovered this, Maribeth was told she was leaving until the baby was born and given up for adoption. She packed her bags and was taken to the town convent.

After just a few nights, she boarded a bus and left town. On her way to Chicago, the bus stopped in a small college town. A little diner across from the bus station would be dinner tonight. As she was leaving a sign in the window caught her eye, waitress wanted. A moment passed and she turned around and asked about the job.

She soon becomes friendly with the regulars; even a boy named Tom who is too young to be a college student but is there most nights, seeming to have a lot on his mind. They soon become friends and before she knows it, she is falling in love. The only thing that stands in her way is what is growing inside her.

She wants to tell him, but does not know how, until one day they go to the lake for a swim. As she was getting out, all one could see was her growing stomach. Tom remains calm and is surprisingly understanding. All he wants is to help her get through this difficult time in her life.

If you want to know what happens between Tom, Maribeth and the baby you will have to read the book.

It is a wonderful book, I cried and I laughed. It is definitely a feel good book and would make anyone happy with love and life. I highly recommend this book, it might be the best on I have read yet.

The Campus Herald encourages students to submit "Letters to the Editor" expressing issues, concerns, or ideas that you may have about the University, Providence, or social issues. Letters should be free of offensive language and discriminating expressions, and not be degrading to any one culture. Letters will only be published if they are signed.

Articles can be submitted to The Campus Herald either by dropping them off to the office located on the 3rd floor of the CBCSI building or e-mail them to campusherald@jwu.edu

When Did Apathy Become Our Motto?

By - Nic Evans

Apathy, do you know what it means? Webster's defines apathy as a lack of emotion. Yeah, that sounds about right.

Student apathy seems to be all over our campus when it comes to issues and getting involved. In our last Student Government Association election fewer than 500 students came out to vote, that's about 8% of our student body. Nationally about 15% is the norm. Even our club, organization and Greek populations are much lower than other schools.

Our current Student Government election should make a great case and point of our campus' apathy. So far we have only one candidate for President and three for Vice President. Both positions are highly respected and paid, yet only four students out of 9,000 have applied.

It seems the only areas where the majority of the student body is concerned is parking and financial aid. Being a commuter based school in the middle of a small city we are always going to have parking problems. Until the administration approves the construction of a garage that will fit the majority of students cars Chestnut, Pine, Broad and Claverick Streets will continue being littered with ten and fifteen dollar orange tickets.

Financial Aid gives out millions of dollars each year and 85% of our campus receives some sort of aid. The university is even dipping into the endowment, ten million dollars worth, to add more scholarships for students.

Students need to question choices made about our campus. We also need to realize the things we have the power to change. One student suggested to me a Business to Culinary monorail, another a greenhouse covering Gaebe Commons. Even though these suggestions are not feasible it is good to know some students are thinking about ways to make J&W a better place. By caring about things on campus we are showing our administration the progress they are making is not going unnoticed.

It is my hope more students apply for the Student Government Association positions. Serving the student body is a fun and rewarding experience. If running is not something for you perhaps look into supporting a candidate or simply go out and vote. Let's bring voter participation to the national level and end apathy at J&W.

What Would You Do With $1 million for J&W? SGA Asked - You Answered

By Natily Santos, DCCC Chairperson

From February 13-15 the Downtown Campus Concerns Committee (DCCC) of SGA sponsored a contest called, "What Would You Do With $1 Million for J&W". We set up booths in both the downtown and Harborside Campuses. The objective of this event was to become better aware of what the student population felt was needed in the University or invest money towards improving. Throughout this event we received many responses and good ideas for advancement. An award was given to the best two answers. The responses had to consist of something creative and that would benefit everyone.

After looking through all the statements the DCCC have selected the 2nd Annual "What Would You Do With $1 Million for J&W" Winners.

Edward Kim: Edward is a Freshman, studying Computer Technology. With a million dollars Edward feels the university should invest more money in modernizing the Classrooms. He would like to see more "Smart Classrooms". This would give the teachers and students more options and different ways to learn. It would increase the value of our education, he stated.

Denae- Marie Stewart: Denae is a Junior with an AS in Culinary Arts. She is continuing her education focusing on attaining a BA in Foodservice Management. With a million dollars Denae would like to build an International Teleconferencing/ Communication Center. Students would be able to virtually travel around the world, view properties, and interview with employers from their screen. Students would also be able to connect with their family and friends across the country and world. This place will feature advanced technology and automatic translator so international and domestic students can interact more.

Thank you to all that participated. Congratulations to the winners who will be receiving each a gift certificate to the University Bookstore.

Abroad Tips for Students

Travel safe, smart and enjoy the experiences

Courtesy of: U-Wire

It's become a rite of passage for many high school and college seniors to follow graduation with that once-in-a-lifetime experience of traveling through Europe by train. Yet there are many things that need to be considered when planning this type of trip, such as safety issues, language barriers and cultural gaps. To help make the process a bit easier for students and their anxious parents, outdoor recreation and adventure travel web site GORP.com has developed a resource dedicated specifically to Eurail travel.

"There are critical things that students need to know before they go," said Bill Greer, CEO of GORP.com. "Like the ins and outs of train travel, where to stay and where to play. We've answers all of these questions and provided personal recollections of past travelers, as well as introduced an interactive forum where students can exchange their own stories."

Specifically geared toward making trips via the rails a bit easier, less stressful and more fun and relaxing for European-bound students, GORP's Eurail pages, available at www.gorp.com/gorp/location/europe/eurail.htm, discuss topics that include:

- Need the Eurailpass, the Europass, or is it the Flexipass? Read about the history of Eurail travel and get information about the 16 different passes available along with pros and cons of each.
- A complete insider's guide to the do's and don'ts of Eurail travel
- Learn about those hidden costs not included in your Eurailpass and the importance of getting your rail pass validated before boarding your first train.
- Already have your rail pass? See what else you'll need in order to ride the train, learn how to reserve a seat or a bed if you are traveling overnight, see which trains require reserved seats, read about tricks for getting on sold-out trains and see how to get the most out of your day pass.

In addition, some valuable insights are provided for first-time travelers to Europe. These helpful tips, which students should keep in mind for their trip through Europe, include:

Before You Leave

- Find personal contacts in the places you are going
- Ask family and friends, check chat rooms or Web sites, and identify people who can be contacted once you get to a destination.
- Learn language basics in the countries you will be going — simple phrases such as "Hello," "How are you?" "Thank you," "Good bye," and "How much is that?" will be endlessly useful in communicating.
- Understand the unique qualities of the cultures you will be visiting
- Do your homework and learn about the local salutations, eating habits, and basic etiquette, as it can vary from one country to the next.
- Learn fundamentals about international travel — know about train travel, the required documentation, what to do in an emergency, and how to call home.

During Your Trip

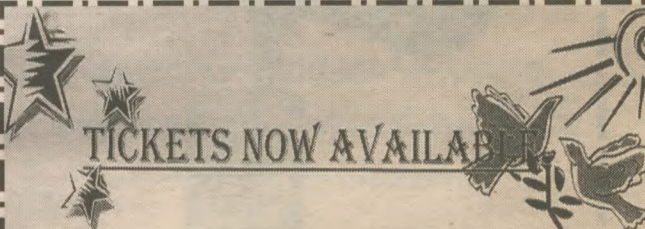

- Use the personal contacts you were given, as well as any you make while on the road — a phone call never hurt anyone and could result in a terrific adventure.
- Don't be shy, but don't be brash — think of yourself as an ambassador and behave with poise, attention, and a sense of purpose.
- Use what language you know and can learn easily — Willingness to learn the local lingo will go a long way.
- Know the local laws and rules, and respect them — you are not immune to your responsibility.

"Traveling Europe by train can be a wonderful and memorable experience," added Greer. "Having the information that GORP has pulled together can put parents' minds at ease and get their kids excited for their summer adventure."

Spring Hair Tips Let your hair loose....

By - Jackie Mancusi

So, I know you're all dying to do something with your hair for the upcoming season. According to our trendsetters and famous icons the look is pretty much anything goes. For those longer locks thin or thick, layered waves make a nice touch, like supermodel Gisele Bundchen, or actress Catherine Zeta-Jones. If your hair is more of a medium length, try adding more attention to your face by putting some subtle or even drastic, angles bringing out your facial features, like Courtney Cox or Kristen Davis. Anything shoulder length or shorter would look great with a clean, sleek cut like Madonna or Jennifer Aniston. But you don't have to cut your hair for a hot new look. Try L'OREAL's "CHUNKING" highlighting kit in blonde or hot red. Some thin or thick, subtle or drastic colored strands will make a nice touch on your hair not to mention help bring the best features on your face. No matter what your style or look your going for just remember these two very important words, " ANYTHING GOES! "

Shoe, Shoes and more Shoes - Part One They are on the comeback trail

By - Jennifer Camilo

The shoes of the 1940's are making a come back. Peek-a-boo toes, ankle straps, and platform heels, all these styles are being seen from the runway to the high fashion shoe stores such as Aldos. Designers such as Prada, Gucci, Louis Vuitton, Cesare, Paviottiare are all designing the shoes for this Spring. Look out for the shoes of the old days making a comeback in 2001.

Spring Shoe Trends What you need to know to keep those toes "Lookin' Good"

By - Melanie Anton

After two seasons of "anything goes" in footwear, important shoe trends have emerged for the Spring 2001 season. Shoe designers are combining both styles from past decades and technology of the future to create footwear for the season. According to the World Shoe Association's Trend Report, "shoes will be streamlined and pared down with a lower profile and a flatter heel. Virtually everything is backless, open toed, or sandalized." Also, "color returns" this Spring.

Inspired by the massive resurgence of denim in ready-to-wear fashions, shoes are encompassing many different blues. From aquatic blue and turquoise to baby blue, all shades of blue will be hot. Additional seasonal colors include citrus shades such as lemon, lime and orange, and "jelly bean colors" like muted pink and lilac. Black is always classic alone and even stronger accented with white or tan.

Important styles and silhouettes include slimmer, trimmer suit shoes, thongs in all categories from jellies to evening, and even boots for spring- light in both color and weight. Mary Janes will continue to be popular from the fall, but now taking the form of a sneaker or backless slide. Also, open toed footwear will be in as espadrilles and flats. Despite tiny heels and strappy silhouettes, comfort has evolved into the underlying principle of the footwear industry. Customers are now demanding shoes with fashion appeal without sacrificing comfort. While women's designers are creating fashions head on, men's styles are more subtle. Clogs have become a traditional style for men and will continue to do so. Also, a more interesting style for men will be the backless slip on with such features as big buckles, whip stitching and elastic. Even though black and brown are still the prevailing colors in men's dress shoes, burgundy and taupe are beginning to creep into the picture. Newer men's sport shoes will include high performance street shoes, sport sandals, and waterproof trail and trek boots.

Shoes for Spring 2001 involve a return to styles gone by as well as styles of the future. For women, this season's footwear will be "flatter, rounder, slimmer and feminine with hints of sequined embellishments, gold fabrications, and patented leather." For men, spring shoes will continue to progress in style, highlighted by trendy clogs, more colorful dress shoes, and ultimate sport shoes.

Chika's Cinema Corner

Movie Reviews

By - Chika Nwosu

Goodlooking, smart, rich, educated, did I mention finnnneeee-looking: all these qualities were bestowed on the men of the movie, "The Brothers". Right from the preview all the way to the postview, this movie was awesome.

The storyline was very recommendable, acting was superb, it was an allstar cast and the humor was greatly appreciated. Ok, now that I'm done with the technicalities, let's get down to the real thing. "The Brothers" was goooooood, it had the audience laughing, crying, oohing, and sighing. NO, it is not a chick flick, although we chicks definitely liked the abs and finesse. This movie portrayed the life of four young men, how they dealt with the female problem and the bonds they formed.

Shemar Moore was just as gorgeous as ever in the movie. He played the role of a man who was ready to be a one-woman man and ready to settle with the love of his life. Of course, he went through some drama.....

Morris Chestnut (Jackson) has the typical male fear - Commitmentphobia - you know what I'm talking about, everytime a lady mentions these key words....."in the future, we should"....."my friend's wedding is coming up, we should go"....."How would you like to meet my parents"....."Do you love me"....."I LOVE you".....this one is the last straw, as soon as the word "LOVE" pops out a girl's mouth, you see the guy's behind sprinting away from the girl. I'm not saying that all men behave like this, but most of them do. And this was the same dilemma with Jackson.

D.L. Hugley was the family man. The i-married-my-woman-because-she-got-pregnant-on-me type. I think that it was a noble thing to do, considering the fact that most men only try and send child support every other month. Later on, they fell in love with each other and learned to respect each other.

Bill Bellamy was just a hater, more specifically.....the brother just couldn't handle women. At first he thought that it was just the black sisters, so he tried the white sisters but he still experienced the same problem. Personally, I think that HE was the problem.

The ladies in the movie were all set with no problem. Sophisticated, classy, educated, independent (well.....most of them were) and naggers.....women were born to nag, it can't be helped. Personally, I think women were born with the license to BITCH. This movie was great and I will definitely recommend it to the J&W community. It is a good relaxation movie and should get you in the mood. If you have any personal opinions on this movie, please feel free to contact me at the Campus Herald on the third floor of the CBCSI Building or campusherald@jwu.edu .

Spring To Me

By - Ryan Ford

As the trees begin to blossom, birds sing and flowers grow
So does the hope for a wonderful summer.
One full of excitement and adventure.

Spring brings many things to people...
Whether it is the longer daylight, the warm afternoon sun or Love.
People long for new experiences in their lives.

It may rain more in the spring, but when the clouds clear who do you find yourself with?
Is it someone you watched all winter long, the person who sat next to you in the fall tri?

Through the course of the day many things spring at you.
The soothing spring colors, cars and their toons passing by, or the faint smell of summer.

I wish for all these things to spring to me and hope they spring to others as well.

DO YOU HAVE THE "WRITE" STUFF?

Many people who think they may have what it takes to do the "write" thing-be a writer, that is-will enter this year's Writers of the Future Contest, now celebrating over 17 years of helping new writers.

The contest was founded by L. Ron Hubbard founded the contest, shortly after the release of his best-selling science fiction novel Battle Field Earth. An acclaimed writer for over 50 years, Hubbard gave freely and generously of his time and energy to help others become better and more productive writers.

Hundreds of contestants have continued with now-successful careers. At last count, there have been more than 250 novels, including NEW YORK TIMES bestsellers, and contestants have published over 2,000 short stories. Come have gone on to publish in such genres as mystery and romance, to write for TV and motion pictures and to become editors and critics.

This year's L Ron Hubbard Awards ceremony will be celebrated in Hollywood, CA. you can find out more about the contest by writing to the L. Ron Hubbard Writers of the Future Contest, Box 1630, and Los Angeles, CA 90078.

Island Fest 2001 Love, Unity, among a Culture

Courtesy of: The Caribbean Student Association

The buzz on campus is Island Fest 2001. Have you ever dreamt of escaping to the Caribbean, visiting an island, getting away from every thing? The answer is yes. The Caribbean Student Association, which is comprised of members from various Caribbean islands bring the Caribbean to you, right here in Providence, Rhode Island.

Island Fest is a time when the Caribbean students here at Johnson & Wales University, come together in love and unity to educate the university community on our culture. Being in a country with a complete different lifestyle and culture from us, Island Fest brings different cultures from the Caribbean together (yes each island has its own culture), to celebrate what we have in common and our differences, making us proud to be who we are. We come together to create a stronger bond among us, educate and have fun. Last year Island Fest 2000 was a blast. This event won Cultural Event of the Year. Over 300 people attended; there was music, tasty island food, arts, crafts and more. This year plans on being bigger. Countries represented are Bahamas, Barbados, Cayman Island, Dominica, Dominican Republic, Haiti, Jamaica, St Vincent and the Grenadines, Trinidad and Tobago, and the United States Virgin Islands. Join us in celebrating Caribbean Unity at Island Fest 2001. Whether you are American, Asian, African or Swedish, you are welcomed! Let's do this Island style!

Grenada - Spice of the Caribbean

Courtesy of: Caribbean Student Association

Although it's still largely known for being the turf on which the US military flexed its muscles in the name of democracy in the 1980s, savvy Caribbean travelers know Grenada as a colorful, robust travel destination that's wonderfully rough around the edges. Dubbed the 'Spice Island' because of its impressive production of nutmeg, mace, cinnamon, ginger and cloves, it has a rugged mountainous interior of rainforests and waterfalls and an indented coastline with protected bays and beaches. Its capital, St George's, is one of the prettiest in the Caribbean. The 120-square-mile (310 sq km) island is a microcosm of all that's best in the Caribbean. There are silky white beaches, unspoiled rainforests, hills and waterfalls, a breathtakingly beautiful colonial capital town, warm, clear bays for swimming and diving, a passion for food that's a lasting legacy of the early French settlers, peace and quiet for lovers of solitude and a lively nightlife if you want it - all wrapped up in a perfect climate. It's no wonder that the British and the French fought so many times for possession.

With its smaller sister islands - Carriacou (13 square miles, or 34 sq km) and Petit Martinique (just 486 acres, or two sq km) - Grenada rests at the foot of the Windward chain in the Caribbean's deep south. If you can drag yourself away from its idyllic beaches and bays, take an eco-trip into the interior to see the spice plantations that have kept the world supplied with nutmeg. Cinnamon, cloves, pimento, ginger and vanilla are grown here, as are cocoa trees.

Back in the capital of St George's, you can't fail to admire this harbor town, generally voted the most attractive in the Caribbean. Spread around the busy working port like an amphitheatre, its pastel-colored French villas line cobbled streets. Visit its forts and churches and, for a full history of this fascinating island, call in at the National Museum, housed in an old French army barracks. It has a marble bath that once belonged to Empress Josephine Bonaparte.

For a change of scene, visit this little island. One of the best unspoiled places on the face of the earth. Grenada thought small is on stop shopping. All that you are looking for in a Caribbean destination, you will find it there. Hope to see you there the next time I visit

Horoscopes

What events will take place this week ?

Aries (March 21-April 19)

* Don't kid yourself about finances. You might feel challenged to deal with others and let them know where a mistake has been made. Confusion surrounds friends. Your pals certainly mean well. Don't go overboard with spending and overindulgence. Tonight: Walk the straight-and- narrow path.

Taurus (April 20-May 20)

* Someone you put on a pedestal presents a different point of view. Be realistic when making decisions. Others mean well but do not see life as practically as you do. Claim your power, knowing what you want from another. Tonight: You're top cat.

Gemini (May 21-June 20)

 A change in plans could disappoint you. Don't lose focus; stay on top of what is going on. Though you might not realize it, you need time to relax. Get into a project you have been putting off. Tonight: Do your thing.

Cancer (June 21-July 22)

* Gather where others are. Don't feel intimidated by another. You might not be seeing a loved one clearly. Recognize where this person is coming from. Plans made together could have quite a romantic tone. Don't underestimate how much this person cares. Tonight: Whatever makes you smile.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22)

 Stand up and be counted. Friends surround you. Bring others together for a fun get-together. You have the ability to organize while a partner is off in never-never land. Realism might not be your strong suit. Tonight: Out and about.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

* Return calls, but do take off ASAP. A day's outing gives you a different perspective. Invite a loved one along. You enjoy just about anything as long as it is away from your day-to-day life. In a relaxed atmosphere, you get a good idea that affects your work or personal life. Tonight: Try a new restaurant.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

* Reach out for others. You might not be exactly sure what is up with a child or loved one. Do a better job of listening and absorbing what he says. One-on one relating adds another dimension to a bond. Tonight: A close encounter.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

* Others take a strong stand. Listen carefully to a family member. You might not be sure about what to do. Buy time, rather than making a decision you could regret. Revise your thinking about another. You might not have realized how controlling this person can be. Tonight: Accept an invitation.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

* Listen carefully to another. Don't hesitate to ask questions or reiterate a statement. Strive for clarity but don't be upset if you don't get it. Emphasize a more relaxed quality in your life. Someone has an odd way of expressing affection. Don't stand on ceremony. Tonight: Easy works for you.

Capricorn (Dec.22-Jan.19)

* Say no to a risk, as enticing as it might be. You can express your caring to a loved one in many ways, without being wild or doing something you regret. Let your playful nature come out, packing away your business profile. Tonight: Play the night away.

Aquarius (Jan.20-Feb. 18)

 Stay close to home. A family member appreciates your calls and attention. You might not always know what to do for a loved one, but it becomes quite clear. Your confusion might result from fatigue and taking on too much. Make it your day to put up your feet. Tonight: You don't have to go far.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20)

* Keep talking, especially if you cannot get a clear sense of what is going on. Others might not be able to clarify, but you get a sense of where your thinking might have been off. Listen to another when making plans. Stroll through favorite stores, or maybe stop at a crafts fair. Tonight: You don't have to go far.

Leading ISP Offers Easiest, Most Affordable Way for Upcoming Graduates to Get Quality Internet Access

Courtesy of: U-Wire

For many college students, graduation is drawing near. Most students preparing to receive their degrees are already polishing up their resumes and many are considering things like where they want to live and what they'd like to do after graduation. But there's one important issue they may not have thought of - how will I get on the Internet?

While the Internet is a daily presence in the life of virtually every American college student today, many of them rely on their university's network to gain access to the Web, and may not have an Internet Service Provider (ISP) of their own. Better to consider the choice of an ISP now than to realize the day after graduation that suddenly they're cut off from the Internet, and have no way to get to everything from job postings and news to the latest sports scores and their favorite music.

Juno (Nasdaq: JWEB) provides an easy, inexpensive way for students to get online after graduation. As one of the nation's leading Internet access providers, with 14.2 million total registered subscriber accounts and 4.0 million active subscribers in December 2000, Juno helps make entering the real world as easy a transition as possible by providing graduating students with the simplest and most affordable way to get on the Internet. Juno has eliminated the hassles of getting online, and can get you onto the Internet at a cost substantially lower than most other major online services*.

Graduating seniors with light Web access needs can turn to Juno's free basic service, which offers full access to the Web and e-mail through Juno's popular and easy-to-use software. Heavier Web surfers, online gamers, and other "power users" might prefer Juno's low-cost premium service: For just $14.95/month (a savings of about 30% compared to AOL), subscribers get priority access to the Juno network and fewer types of onscreen ads, plus free live technical support by phone any time they need it. (As with any dial-up Internet access service, note that additional phone charges may apply, depending on the access number you select.) In some markets, Juno users can even sign up for super-fast broadband or wireless versions of the service.

Juno 5.0, the newest version of the Juno client software, also provides students with a single, easy-to-use interface for all their e-mail and Web surfing needs. Juno 5.0 includes a wide array of advanced features such as an integrated browser with an "always-on" navigation and search bar, rich HTML e-mail that makes it easy to add graphics, colors, backgrounds and fonts to messages, and "mail assistants" which enable users to have Juno automatically filter and sort e-mail messages based on instructions they establish.

Juno's portal site, www.juno.com, provides easy access to the information and tools Internet users need, ensuring that everything from the Web's leading shopping sites to the latest movie and music news is never more than a few clicks away. Juno also offers a wide range of other services for subscribers, including Juno Instant Messenger, a tool that lets subscribers exchange instant messages with more than 70 million peopleworldwide, including AOL users.

For students who are unsure where they'll be after graduation, Juno's broad national coverage assures Internet access anywhere in the U.S. And with Juno's low prices, students can rest assured that no matter where they're working after graduation, they'll be able to afford convenient, user-friendly Internet access. Students can get more information and a copy of the Juno software by visiting www.juno.com, or by calling 1-800-TRY-JUNO.

An Interview with Jeff Allen.... Dance instructor/choreographer at J & W

By - Rebecca Bozeman

Jeff Allen is the dance instructor/choreographer here at the Johnson & Wales Providence Campus. Recently, I sat down with Jeff to discuss his program and accomplishments. I was a bit apprehensive about taking on this interview. Most of the interviews I have done involved people or subjects that I was somewhat familiar with. I loved FAME and through the better part of 3rd grade I was convinced I was destined to be a Solid Gold dancer, aside from these childhood fantasies, dance wasn't a major part of my life.

Possibly overqualified, Allen offers students, faculty, and alumni the opportunity to take advantage of his experience and fine tuned technique, all free, through classes being offered at the Harborside Recreational Center. When I say overqualified, I mean it with the utmost respect. As soon as the interview got underway I knew this particular individual had a hell of a lot to offer the Johnson & Wales community. I was taken back by what Allen had accomplished in his field of expertise. Where he found the time or patience to accomplish these feats is unknown, but I am sure his students and contemporaries are glad he did.

With so many accomplishments and certificates of merit it would certainly prove to be a tedious task to try and fit them into one article. Instead I will focus on Jeff Allen's proudest achievements throughout the years. I asked Allen, "What inspired him to write books and contribute to magazines?" he replied, "I was unhappy with the inadequacies and inaccuracy of the information in publication, and I felt as though the dance industry needed a dramatic overhaul." If you sit down long enough with Jeff Allen you get the sense that he accomplishes what he sets out to do, and carries it out whole-heartedly.

Jeff Allen is the author of numerous books and a feature writer for DANCING USA, which is the #1 Magazine for Ballroom Dancing in America. Of his three books on dance, his proudest and most acclaimed, QUICKSTART TO SWING, is one of the best selling books on dance in the country. Two books, which Allen refers to as compilations, are currently in progress. From Tango to Hip-Hop, Allen has lived it and then published it so we too could share in it.

Allen is quick to give credit when it is due. The program would certainly not be where it is today if it were not for the backing of Bob Nicolian, the Recreational Manager at the Harborside Rec. Center. It is a rare thing today to come across individuals who are so passionate about their profession, and even more rare to come across an individual who expects nothing in return except dedicated participation.

Whether you are a beginner or have 20 years of dance experience under your belt, these classes will provide you with the opportunity to learn, refine, or simply observe different genres of dance. Singles and couples are encouraged to participate. How many Casanova's on Campus were pining away and spending ridiculous amounts of money to impress that certain girl? Your searching has ended. The Latin and Salsa beats are bound to ignite a spark. This is a sure fire way to sweep her off her feet. Ladies, maybe that cute guy at your work or in your class loves to dance. Swing by and find out. If you are flying solo these days, this would be a great opportunity to meet people.

Classes take place at the Harborside Recreation Center Tuesday and Wednesday nights and include, Intermediate Salsa, Performance Latin, West Coast Swing & Lindy Hop, Disco Hustle, and Night Club Style. Calling 598-1615 can provide any further information.

Re: Member/Chapter Conduct

Greek organizations have traditionally been welcome at Johnson & Wales University because they can enhance the college experience for many students by providing opportunities to develop leadership skills, increase social awareness and responsibility, boost academic achievement, and build life-long friendships. However, if fraternities or sororities engage in illegal or improper behavior such as hazing, fighting, underage drinking, intimidation, retaliation, or any activity that endangers the physical or mental health of a student, the disadvantages of Greek life at Johnson & Wales may begin to outweigh the advantages.

At Johnson & Wales University, Greek organizations are required and expected to comply with the law, with the Code of Student Conduct and Good Neighbor Policy, and with the rules and regulations of the Department of Student Affairs and the Office of Greek Life. Students who participate in violations by a Greek organization expose themselves to University disciplinary action, as well as civil liability and criminal prosecution. Violations by chapters may result in disciplinary action against the chapter (up to and including suspension). Moreover, all students should be aware that violations may also lead to a decision that Greek letter organizations will no longer be allowed at Johnson & Wales University. Please encourage all Greek organizations at Johnson & Wales to observe the laws and rules so that fraternities and sororities will continue to earn the right to be a respected and valuable part of student life at Johnson & Wales University.

It is my sincere hope that you will not be subjected to any illegal or improper activities; however, I want you to be aware of the policies by which all Johnson & Wales students must abide. If you would like to report any acts of illegal or improper activities, please contact the Office of Safety & Security at 598-1103.

Rhode Island Law - Statement on Hazing

The State of Rhode Island considers hazing a criminal offense as listed in Section 11-21-1 of the Rhode Island General Laws: "(a) Any organizer of, or participant, in an activity constituting hazing as defined in subsection (b), shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars ($500) or punished by imprisonment for not less than thirty (30) days not more than one year, or both. (b) The term 'hazing,' as used in this chapter, shall mean any conduct or method of initiation into any student organization, whether on public or private property, which willfully or recklessly endangers the physical or mental health of any student or other person. Such conduct shall include, but not be limited to, whipping, beating, branding, forced calisthenics, exposure to the weather, forced consumption of any food, liquor, beverage, drug or other substance, or any brutal treatment of forced physical activity which is likely to adversely affect the physical health or safety of the student or any other person, or which subjects the student or other person to extreme mental stress, including extended deprivation of sleep or rest or extended isolation."

If you are ever unsure if an activity is considered hazing, consider the following questions:

- * Would you let a reporter from The Campus Herald see and report the activity?
- * Would you tell prospective members about the activity?
- * Would you tell your parents about the activity?
- * Would you tell the University administration about the activity?

If you hesitate to say "yes" to any of the above questions, then the activity is probably hazing.

When it Rains, Watch Out, Goodyear Says

Spring rains call for a thorough inspection of your tires, according to officials from The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company.

Worn tires and a National Weather Service forecast calling for significant rainfall — and perhaps flooding — are a recipe for disaster, Mark Cherveny, product manager for Goodyear auto tires, said.

Cherveny recommends that drivers inspect their tires for adequate tread depth to ensure that they can handle the puddles and slick pavement that spring-time brings. In addition, federal and state laws prohibit bald tires, where the tread has worn to 2/32nds of an inch and exposed wear bar indicators are revealed in the tread.

An easy way to check tread depth is to use the penny test. Turn the penny upside down with Lincoln's head entering the tread groove. If you can see the top of his head, it's time to replace the tire.

Increased puddling on the roadway can make vehicles susceptible to loss of traction, Cherveny said. A heavy downpour or thunderstorm dumps rain at the rate of 2 to 4 inches per hour, building a film of water up to 0.08 inch deep on the road.

Poor drainage leads to additional accumulation, a prime concern for road engineers, Cherveny said.

The National Weather Service said flooding is possible in the South, western Great Lakes and the Northeast due to a wet and snowy winter and the potential for a wet spring. The Midwest is expected to have a normal spring, although snowmelt in Minnesota and the Dakotas could cause flooding. Drought conditions, meanwhile, are expected to continue in the Southeast, particularly Florida. Above-normal precipitation is forecast for parts of the Northwest, but not enough to offset the impact of low rain levels and a thin snow pack, the Weather Service said.

The heavy rainfall amounts predicted for the rest of the country make spring driving conditions especially hazardous, Cherveny said. A tire tread acts as a squeegee, forcing water from the road into the tread grooves.

If the amount of water a tire must displace through tread grooves is greater than the capacity of the tire, excess water builds up in front of the moving tire. As water pressure mounts, the fluid acts as a wedge and literally lifts the tire off the road, similar to the bow of a speedboat lifting off the water.

"Loss of traction on wet pavement is a potential driving dilemma year round, but it doesn't have to be," Cherveny said. "When it rains, slow down, drive cautiously, steer and brake with a light touch and make sure you have adequate tread depth remaining on your tires."

A car's speed plays a major role in wet-traction performance; loss of traction can occur at speeds as low as 45 mph or less on curves. A smooth road, low vehicle weight and low tire inflation pressures also contribute to loss of traction, he said.

Detailing Tips Wash, Wax and Buff

1. When washing your automobile it is recommend to use soap that will attack the dirt and grit that is accumulated from the road. Dish detergent or special car washing solutions work the best.
2. Wash your car in the shade. Direct sun will dry the soap bubbles up too fast, which will cause streaks to be left.
3. After the last rinse use a dry towel to dry the car down. Towels should be washed and dried with other clothes to ensure it is soft. A dirty towel or air-dried one may cause swirls in paint.
4. Make sure to dry all areas that are high risk for rust. Thus being, door trims, deck lid area, edges of the hood and wheel wells. Continuous effort to maintain these area will help the fight against rust.

J & W's Softball Team on a Big Hitting Streak

By - John Parente

Last year, their first with a full schedule of 36 games, the Johnson & Wales softball team labored through an awful lot of losses, though playing some very talented teams.

The schedule in 2000 began with 11 losses in Florida, and continued through very limited success against competition in the Great Northeast Athletic Conference.

But the lessons learned last year were learned well, and things are very, very different now.

The Wildcats ripped off a five-game winning streak during a busy span in which they won six of seven games.

They also made two very firm statements.

After beating Suffolk, 3-1, to raise their GNAC record to 3-0, the Wildcats made it known that they want to be a playoff team. But after splitting a doubleheader with powerful Eastern Connecticut, the 'Cats have now made it known that they can compete against plenty of teams throughout New England.

The transformation from frustrated to finely-tuned has two main keys—the same keys that any successful softball or baseball has—pitching and defense.

J & W's one-two punch of Laura Hutchison and Kim Cyr has produced seven wins in the team's last ten games. And, when they're on their defensive game, the Wildcats are downright fun to watch.

Against Becker (a 3-2 win), Suffolk, and in their 3-2 win over Eastern Connecticut, J & W played flawless and errorless defense.

Oh, there's one other thing. People on this team get big hits at big moments.

Freshman Brooke Hartford slashed a two-run single into right field in the bottom of the seventh inning—a dramatic walk-off hit that gave the Wildcats their upset win over Eastern Connecticut, a perennial power in the Little East Conference.

That hit made a winner of Hutchison, her fourth of the season, and capped off a sensational week for the junior two-sport standout.

Hutchison went the distance against Becker earlier in the week, and struck out ten.

And when Cyr left midway through the opener of the twin-bill with Eastern Connecticut, Hutchison finished that one off then pitched a complete-game in the nightcap.

Hutchison also went eight-for-12 from the plate, raising her average to .480—the third highest mark in the GNAC, and earned Player of the Week honors from the conference for her efforts. Included in the eight hits was an RBI single in the seventh of the Suffolk game, scoring senior Christine Loring, who had tripled. Down 1-0, the Wildcats took over the game in the sixth, when a single by Kara Pitcock, a triple off the bat of Libby Johnson, and a go-ahead single by Stacie Quinton made it 2-1.

There were other heroes during the week. Cyr pitched a one-hitter against Lasell in an 8-0 whitewash. Still another freshman, Audra

Rockefeller, came up with seven hits in five games, including her first collegiate home run. And yet another first-year player, outfielder Katie Kindall smacked a grand slam home run to set the Wildcats on their way to a doubleheader sweep against GNAC rival Southern Vermont.

The Wildcats return home from the past weekend's GNAC Crossover Classic ready to take on some important in-conference foes and an in-state rival, too. On Wednesday, the Wildcats entertain Roger Williams at Pierce Field starting at 4:00. One day later, Emerson, a two-time GNAC finalist, comes to Pierce for a single game at 3:30. On Saturday, the Wildcats are off to West Hartford, Connecticut, to battle one of the conference's premier teams, St. Joseph College, in a key divisional doubleheader.

Baseball Team Out to Prove They are Worthy in the GNAC

By - John Parente

Since their doubleheader loss to Suffolk a couple of weeks ago, the Johnson & Wales baseball team has been under a collective resolve to prove that they're as good as the Rams, or any other team in the Great Northeast Athletic Conference.

Since they lost to Suffolk, 4-3 and 12-9, the Wildcats have begun to back up their words. J & W had won six of its last seven going into last Sunday's doubleheader with Emerson, and had been a rather impressive team in an awful lot of ways.

There was one bump in the road through the successful seven-game stretch, a 10-2 loss to Norwich in the first game of their GNAC doubleheader.

But the 'Cats showed a solid resolve and good resiliency when they rode senior Jay Minassian's four-hitter and beat the Cadets in the second game, 3-1.

Minassian was exceptional, striking out nine and holding the Cadets to a single run.

The Wildcats had beat up on Southern Vermont just a day before, as Dave Santos, who earned both the GNAC and the ECAC Player of the Week awards, slammed a grand-slam home run against the Mountaineers. Santos was 10-for-16 during the week, and continued his assault on the unique all-time NCAA record for most times hit by a pitch during a career. Going into the Emerson doubleheader, Santos had been struck by a pitched ball 51 times, nine short of the all-time mark of 60 by Jason Angell of Rensselaer from 1993-96.

But Angell set the mark in 145 career games. Santos has been plunked 51 times in 76 games. Still, the HBPs have helped Santos' on-base percentage reach a nearly silly .600. And the senior second baseman has been the catalyst of the J & W offense so far this year. During the week in which he copped the two Player of the Week awards, Santos' OBA was .737.

Perhaps the best example of J & W's resolve came in Boston against a UMass-Boston team that took an 8-0 lead into the seventh inning of their game against the 'Cats. But in the top of the seventh, J & W pecked away, then got a big two-out, two-run single by Chris Husenica, and parlayed that hit, three walks, and two errors, into an eight-run outburst that tied the game.

Pablo Caraballo closed out the come-from-behinder in the ninth with a sacrifice fly that produced the deciding run. Mike Hall, who went into the weekend leading the GNAC in runs batted in, notched his 18th of the year against UMB.

John Muskewycz pitched two and two-thirds innings of shoutout relief for the win.

Pitching was the name of the game against Curry College two days later. Ken Scholl pitched three marvelously scoreless frames, Minassian held the Wildcat lead in the middle three, and freshman Gene Tarbox ended the contest with a flourish in his second fine outing in a row. The lefty from Sanford, Maine has now pitched six scoreless innings over his last two appearances.

The games get larger for the Wildcats this week, as on Wednesday they'll head to New Haven, Connecticut, to play a pair against the other major threat for the GNAC title, Albertus Magnus. Then, the 'Cats will have plenty of home dates at Pierce Stadium, starting with a Thursday matchup with Salve Regina at 4:00. On Saturday, it's a GNAC doubleheader with Rivier beginning at noon at Pierce, followed by a Tuesday visit from another in-state rival, Roger Williams. After a Wednesday trip to Framingham State, the 'Cats go right back to Pierce for a Thursday, April 19th non-leaguer with Anna Maria, and a GNAC double-dip with Daniel Webster.

J & W No Longer Unbeaten.....

Mens' Tennis

By - John Parente

Their unbeaten season and league unbeaten streak are now things of the past, but the Johnson & Wales men's tennis team knows that they played the new leader in the Great Northeast Athletic Conference virtually even-up.

Western New England took over the GNAC lead by edging J & W 5-4 at Moses Brown School on Saturday, thus ending the Wildcats' hopes of going through the conference season without a blemish for a third straight year.

The loss also ended a five-match winning streak, which began JWU's 2001 season.

Nick Daugherty, returning from an early-season illness, won his match at third singles, and then teamed with Daniel Welander for a win at second-doubles. But after the two teams were tied, 3-3, after singles play, the Wildcats fell short, as the Golden Bears' Mike Raymond, playing with the memories of three losses to the 'Cats dancing through his head, played some flawless tennis, and teamed with his partner to edge JWU's Justin Parras and Greg Powell, 8-5, in the first-doubles match, the last of the day, for the decisive point.

J & W had prepped for their match with WNEC by blasting Roger Williams and Newbury, both by 8-1 scores last week. Philip Graham-Bell won both of his matches to improve to 7-0 overall. He didn't play in the Western New England match.

Welander registered straight-set wins to improve his mark to 7-1, while Rory Simet, who beat his WNEC foe in singles play, also had a fine week, and has won his last four matches at fourth-singles.

The Wildcats can't dwell on what could have been. They'll be in action against UMass-Boston and Worcester State in non-league encounters before they return to work in conference play on Saturday at home against Albertus Magnus. That one'll start at 1:00 at Moses Brown.

SANTOS, BRUISED BUT HAPPY, CLOSING IN ON NCAA RECORD

Johnson & Wales senior second-baseman Dave Santos has practically made a living on getting hit by pitches throughout his four-year Wildcat baseball career. All of the bruises are paying off. Not only has Santos been one of the Great Northeast Athletic Conference's toughest outs, but he's now closing in on one of the more unique records in NCAA baseball. After "taking one for the team" for the fifth time this year against Suffolk last Saturday, Santos is only 12 bruises away from the all-time NCAA Division III record for being hit by a pitch in his career. Santos, in fact, already holds the national mark percentage-wise. He's been plunked 48 times in less than 70 games. The national record-holder needed over 130 games to be hit 60 times. JWU's "Prince of Plunked", a senior from Fords, NJ, gets another opportunity this weekend in games against Southern Vermont and Norwich. More importantly, Santos' on-base average this year is .667—among the tops in the league once again this year.

The Johnson & Wales Sailing Team Wants You !!

The Sailing Team is looking for new members to join. If you are interested contact them at 598-1600

Dear Community,

The Johnson & Wales University track and field club is looking forward to another great spring. As the month of April approaches we are in the midst of Easter around the corner, there are many people in our community who do not have any food. Being in the first week of April we will be collecting food for the needy. We will be distributing letter and bags on Thursday, April 5, 2001 and on Friday, April 6, 2001. We will be collecting the food on Friday, April 13, 2001.

Whether you are involved in the efforts of giving back to our community as being a servant or as a giving person.

For further information about our community service event, please call Hollie Walton at The Harborside Recreational Center.

Thank you for your time. We look forward to having you be a part of the community service team.

Johnson & Wales University Track & Field Club

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

Raj Dhekar (Jr., Hospitality Mgmt., Greensboro, NC). In one of the less glamorous positions in volleyball, Raj excels. An adept passer, Dhekar has spent most of this year at the very top of the North East Collegiate Volleyball Association's leader board in assists. A two-time all-NECVA selection, Raj has often played well above his 5'8" frame. His trademark surprise dinks stop opponents cold and he has continually come up with key kills or key blocks when called to play at the net.

STUDENT-ATHLETE ADVISORY COMMITTEE NAMES NEW OFFICERS

Erini Papafilipakis of the Johnson & Wales women's tennis team is the new president of the J & W Student-Athlete Advisory Committee. The SAAC consists of two members from each of the 15 intercollegiate teams, and works with the Department of Athletics to enhance the overall program, and to coordinate various promotional and community service projects throughout the year. Steve Park of the men's volleyball team was named vice-president and the SAAC's senator to the J & W Student Government. Dennis Cardoso, also from the men's volleyball team, was elected the SAAC's financial secretary. Papafilipakis succeeds Dave Hildebrandt, who was elected the first SAAC president last year. Hildebrandt is a member of the NCAA National Financial Aid and Awards Committee, and will attend the national committee meeting in Marco Island, Florida in June.
